In creating art, Waring's influences are in a constant flux—from the movement of the planets and erosion, to live music and time, nothing is fixed. Waring's art is unique in its focus on the non-tangible. Earning a degree in art from the Rhode Island School of Design, Waring taught at Haverford School for five years and is currently Chair of the Fine Arts Department, Westtown School (Philadelphia), where he has worked for nearly two decades.
